

Kirtland Air Force Base (AFB)
Environmental Restoration Program (ERP)
Restoration Advisory Board (RAB)
Community Interest Form

BACKGROUND: The Air Force periodically conducts a RAB assessment at installations where a formal RAB does not exist. The assessment will determine if there is adequate and sustained community and stakeholder interest in forming a RAB for ERP sites at an installation. The Kirtland AFB ERP currently holds joint semi-annual public meetings with the U.S. Department of Energy and Sandia National Laboratories, in addition to regular public meetings conducted for the Bulk Fuels Facility remediation project. These meetings allow public participation and involvement in Air Force restoration programs to meet regulatory and permit requirements. If the Installation Commander determines that there is adequate and sustained interest in forming a RAB, it would formally take the place of these existing public meetings.

The Air Force recognizes the importance of stakeholder and community participation. A RAB is intended to improve public information and participation by sharing project updates with and receiving input from interested and impacted communities. For appointment as a RAB member, the appointee must live or work in the affected community or must be affected by the Kirtland AFB ERP. RAB members will be asked to meet regularly for activities including, but not limited to, reviewing and commenting on environmental documents and activities for all Kirtland AFB ERP projects. RABs can influence cleanup decisions through discussion and valuable input provided to installation decision makers, but they do not make restoration decisions. All RAB meetings will be open to the public.

Your information and responses will be reviewed and used only by Kirtland AFB and will not be shared with third-party entities.
